With F.M.L.

It's probably happened numerous times.

The highest compliment a man can receive came to me when I was a 23-year-old second lieutenant of artillery.

It came from a first lieutenant several years older and a veteran of combat in Korea.

He said offhandedly in his Irish Bostonese one day: "Frank, if I ever took this unit into combat, I'd want you there."

I was his battery exec.

114-114-114

That kind of confidence deserves whatever one can do with it.

Deserved or not, the comment bolstered an odd sense of destiny (Gad, there it is-- that serious view) which I had felt in college days. How melodramatic, how juvenile, how supercilious such a comment must have seemed!

It allows the audacity to use the first person singular in the lode of Montaigne or Bacon. And without a sense of ego. Who, after all, do I think I know better than myself? And is this not so with you?

Anyone remotely honest with himself is more amused at his condition than amazed at his attributes. He realizes, as I discovered at college's end, how little he knows and how much he is to learn... if he dare.

It is as much what you stumble on to as what you do. Chance or intent looks the same if either works. And nobody really cares if someone else betters the human condition if he goes undisturbed.

Chance and intent have thus far had it for me to add a cipher here, a comma there. I hope it has not hurt anyone too much. That is the intent and not piously meant, for what Khayyam writes is apt:

"The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,

Moves on; nor all your Piety nor Wit Shall lure it back to cancel half a line.

Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of it."

I try what the first great novelist Cervantes achieved in "Don Quixote", and that is to be understood at different levels.

Tell a story well and it will be appreciated for the uncommon experiences it somehow touches. Live life this day as the first without fear of the last.

You well might share in the audacity and awe of life beyond "security."

If you live each breath as if it were your last, you know instinctively where it comes from and, it is only yours on loan.

Banks Show Gains

Central Texas' 29 banks reported a 9.2 percent gain in deposits at the end of 1973 compared with the last quarter of 1972, a state bank call reveals.

However, the increase was not as sharp as the 18 percent recorded at the end of 1972. Bank loans showed an even more significant increase with a 15.3 percent gain.

Milam area bank calls showed these figures:

New Program Outlined

A new federal program to finance local businesses or industrial development will help improve the economic climate in rural areas of Texas, according to J. Lynn Futch, state director of Farmers Home Administration, Temple.

Already letters of preapplication are being received, Futch said, requesting financial assistance to develop businesses under provisions of the 1972 Rural Development Act. The Farmers Home Administration, a rural credit service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, oversees the program.

"Submitting a letter of preapplication is the first step in the program", Futch explained. "Any individual or group that needs financing for industry or business in Texas should summarize his ideas in a proposal and submit it to the FHA county office in the area, or to a private lender. Priority will be given to projects that strengthen rural communities by improving economic and employment conditions as outlined in the Rural Development Act."

If the prospective business meets eligibility requirements, Futch said, the applicant will be requested to submit a formal application. Major projects will be cleared with appropriate local and state officials to assure compliance with development plans for the area.

In addition to individuals eligible applicants may include partnerships, cooperatives, and corporations.

Most borrowers will receive loans advanced by private lenders guaranteed up to 90 percent by FHA rural areas and cities not over 50,000 populations. Loan funds may be used to purchase machinery and equipment, to buy land, buildings and permanent fixtures, and for working capital.

162 Enter Jr. Stock Show

A NEW FEATURE of Saturday's Junior Livestock Show will be the auction of a hog similar to this one shown by Steve Beattie, herdsman for the Cameron Swine Producers Association and chairman of the show. Money from the auction will go for show expense.

Junior showmen from throughout Milam County will converge on Cameron Saturday to take part in the 28th annual Milam County Junior Livestock Show.

Rodney Kruse, assistant county agent, said about 162 entries have been received for the show.

Contestants are members of Future Farmers of America chapters and 4-H Clubs. The young people enter animals in four divisions - beef, dairy, swine and sheep.

The judging will begin this year at 9 a.m. with judging of the dairy females, breeding sheep, lambs, beef heifers, steers and conclude with the swine judging.

There will be trophies presented to the Grand Champion in each division, with rosettes going to the Reserve Champion. All other entries will be classified according to their quality into blue, red, and white ribbon winners.

An added attraction is the awarding of trophies to the top showman in each of the four major livestock areas. This award is presented to the individual doing the best job of presenting his animal to the judge.

Also, one lucky individual will be winner of a butcher calf to be given away. Tickets are now on sale for the donation of $1 in the calf contest. The money is used for premium money to the exhibitors and for other show expenses. Tickets are available from ag teachers, students 4-H'ers and Extension agents.

A butcher hog will be auctioned off as a part of the show's activities, with money from this event also earmarked for the show expenses. This will be a new addition to the show and will be held in the afternoon before swine judging. Wally Eldridge from the Cameron Auction will be the auctioneer.

Buckholts Kindergarten

Kindergarten classes will start in Buckholts for all students that are five years of age as of September 1, 1973 on January 14. Those that attended pre-school last summer need not pre-register. Parents of students that did not attend should call or come by the school office prior to the start date.

City Studies Zoning Request

The city has been asked for a zoning deviation on North Houston Ave. for construction of a new store, and has received an informal proposal to purchase the Citizens National Bank building in the event the bank moves to another location.

Mayor Gene Blake, at a regular meeting Tuesday evening, presented the zoning problem to the city council for a deviation to be granted next to Keith's Minimax for a new Ben Franklin store. A public hearing will be called after property owners in the vicinity have been notified.

Mayor Blake said the bank is considering either rebuilding present facilities or moving to a new building, and had asked if the city would be interested in purchasing its present building. Councilmen discussed it for a short time and decided to table the matter for further study. It was pointed out that the city might have to spend about $100,000 all told in purchase and remodeling for city hall use.

In other business, council:

--Opened bids on gasoline and diesel fuel. All but one letter stated that the company was unable to bid on the fuel now. One company, Arco, offered a bid which was accepted by the council. Mayor Blake said the city would receive 87 percent of fuel used last year, and additional purchases from other companies might be necessary.

--Heard Blake tell that work on Ledbetter Park should go forward following some dam work at the lake. The Noon Lions have money set aside for the park, funds to be matched by the city up to $3,000.

--Heard Streets Supt. Jim Hale report that Bandas was supposed to have started on paving streets Monday, but had not showed up.

--Agreed to survey of city maintenance barn property for installing a chain link fence to protect equipment on the property. The city would have a man there on weekends to take care of garbage placed in trucks by residents.

--Agreed to the city looking into a proposition to have a joint landfill area along with the cities of Rockdale and Thorndale. The city is running out of space at its present landfill, and council said the city should be seeking another area to purchase.

Exchange Students Visit Cameron

Through the International Fellowship Organization, three South American students have come to Cameron for a six month visit. These students will be learning the ways of the United States as they live with their assigned families here in Cameron.

Felix Rivera, age 17, will be staying with Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Harper. Alberto Bernabe, 17, will live with the Marcelina Flores and Mario Cavalleir, 15, will spend his six months in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Flirsh Ermis.

Two of the students, Alberto and Mario, are from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Felix is from Lima, Peru.

During their visit, all three students will be attending Yoe High School, and will study subjects similar to those studied by other students.

Alberto and Felix are classified as seniors at Yoe High School, however, both students have recently graduated from the high school in their country. Mario will be classified as a sophomore and will engage in the activities of this class.

All three students have stated that they are enjoying the school, but all remarked about several differences between the schools of their countries and the schools of Cameron. The students said that in their countries students do not change classrooms, but rather the teachers do, and that they have no electives to choose subjects from.

The students are having a hard time adjusting to the cold climates of the United States, because it seldom gets cold in their countries. This mild climate sets a perfect scene for the sports that the students enjoy.

All three reported that they enjoy surfing, soccer, tennis, basketball, and volleyball.

The students have already decided on their careers. Felix wishes to be an industrial engineer, Alberto an agriculturalist, and Mario would like to enter the diplomat field.

For Youthful Excellence...

We would hope Saturday's Junior Livestock Show is the biggest and broadest attended in the history of this 27th annual Milam County event.

Indeed, this youth event is probably receiving as much Milam-wide support as any county effort of its kind.

And each additional year of success will mark the need for a bigger, more adequate facility to take it.

Barring inclement weather, visitors, contestants, professionals in the livestock industry will see some of the finest stock in Central Texas. Numerous of these entries are going on to shows in Houston, Fort Worth or San Antonio for competition which in prior years Milam Entries have won or placed.

We thank the boosters of this event, particularly the early developers who started it in a humble way, the usual way for things to start, but which find this kind of growth in its merit.

It is another example of knowhow and drive which is bringing of contributions of almost $2,000 for prizes and organizational money for a new facility planning or fund development.

This is yet another example of modern Milam County acknowledging the enormous asset of your youth and vigor, found in a modern livestock industry which accounts for about 40 percent of agriculture income.

We say thanks to those who continue encouraging excellence among Milam youth.

Trading Sun For Oil...

It's DST time (Daylight Saving Time) through 1974 and 1975. Remember, like it is in summertime.

It's light an hour longer; it's dark an hour longer in the morning. It figures, we suppose, that fewer people are up early in the mornings than when almost everyone is up in early evening, thus the energy saving.

The saving is most likely heat because people in cold climates stay in bed during darkness, now the hour longer in morning, and burn lights no later at night. Or so it would seem.

The sun you see is a substitute for about 200,000 barrels of oil saving. Or so somebody figures.

We are only days later adjusting to the fact that this change is supposed to help things. It better save oil. It's too chilly most winter days even in Central Texas to play an extra set of tennis.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

OIL COMPANIES ANSWER LAWMAKER

Senator Dewey F. Bartlett (Okla.) "... On October 5, I asked both integrated and independent companies engaged in the production of domestic oil and gas to answer the following question:

"Assuming that sufficient new acreage will be available in the United States for the exploration for new reserves of oil and natural gas and the price controls on either or both commodities are lifted, what percent of the additional cash flow resulting from the removal of existing price controls on natural gas or crude oil or both, would you invest in the exploration for and development of new domestic petroleum and natural gas reserves including domestic oil, and gas pipelines, domestic refineries, and domestic natural gas processing plants? ... (Excerpts from a few of the 115 replies follow):

Standard Oil Co. of California. "... 90 percent of the additional cash would be so invested."

Exxon Co. U.S.A. (Standard Oil Company (N.J.)) "... Our company, as well as the rest of the industry, will require substantial outside borrowing or new equity offerings to meet investment plans ... Skelly Oil Co. "... We will commit to domestic expenditures for oil and gas exploration production or related facilities virtually all of the additional cash flow that results from the removal of price controls ... Standard Oil Co. (Ind.) "... Our company will always channel maximum available funds into exploration for oil and gas whenever an adequate return is foreseen ... Marathon Oil Co. "... We can assure you that the great bulk of any increase in cash flow would be plowed back into our activities ...

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

The importing of cheap crude oil, and cheap fuel oil and gasoline refined overseas, from cheap crude oil, has ended. It will require huge sums of money to build additional refineries and explore and develop new domestic oil fields.

It's been suggested that the government get into the oil business. We are reminded of the story that, "An elephant is just a mouse built to government specifications with the taxpayer's money."

Despite its millenniums of culture and civilization, India has no written records dating before the 10th century.

Legislative Leaders Hope For Successful Convention

Legislative leaders expressed optimism for success of the state Constitutional Convention which opened at noon Tuesday (Jan. 8).

Planning committees have worked out a fast-paced 81-day schedule which may, or may not, hold up.

Optimists see at least a 50-50-chance of success, noting that of 12 constitutions offered voters in other states during the last 12 years, half were rejected, frequently on a single issue.

House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., projected presiding officer of the historic convention, the first since 1875, hopes to have committee hearings started by January 16.

Preliminary briefings by corresponding committees of the 37-member Constitutional Revision Commission will precede the committee hearings.

Daniel claims the convention, composed of 181 legislators, will be successful because delegates have a down-to-business attitude and are the best prepared group (thanks to work of the Revision Commission) ever to undertake such a task.

Such controversial issues as right-to-work inclusion in the constitution, legislative pay raises and appellate judges, under Daniel's plan, would be submitted to voters as separate issues. That procedure, the speaker maintains, would prevent jeopardizing a largely non-controversial document because of a handful of hot potatoes.

Eight substantive committees and five procedural committees are proposed to handle the initial hearings and study starting next week.

POLITICAL SEASON ON — Major candidates are getting in place for the 1974 primary races.

Attorney General John Hill announced for a second term. Agriculture Commissioner John White announced for a 13th.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe revealed his plans (back in late October) to seek a second term.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will be doing the same. Others already on the starting blocks include Railroad Commissioners Jim Langdon and Mack Wallace, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Treasurer Jesse James (although some haven't announced formally).

Comptroller Robert Calvert remains a question mark. Whether or not he retires, former Secretary of State Bob Bullock is running for his office, and State Sen. Jim Wallace of Houston is a probable.

Republicans have fielded in the governor's race Henry Grover, Jim Cranberry, State Rep. Ray Hutchison and Odell McBrayer.

SPEED LIMIT CHANGE DUE — With President Nixon's signature of the nationwide 55 miles per hour speed limit law, Texas has no choice but to follow suit.

The State Highway Commission, under a new law passed in special session last month giving it authority to establish new speed limits to meet emergencies, scheduled a January 8 public hearing.

Result of the hearing was clear in advance: the limit will be lowered to 55 mph — probably enforceable by late January or early February.

The alternative: losing some $240 million a year in federal highway assistance.

AG OPINIONS — political action committees have to report expenditures to influence elections, Atty. Gen. Hill held.

However, Hill said that determining whether such committees come under campaign reporting and disclosure law provisions is a question for factual determination in each case.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

A law requiring financial statements by public officials is constitutional, and district judges are covered.

A county commissioners court may transfer surplus road and bridge funds into the general fund.

A person who spends in excess of $200 per calendar quarter by paying another to communicate directly with a legislator would not have to register under the new lobby act.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

While it used to be, day two years ago, the world's main problem was trying to find a new source of tax revenue, everybody knows the problem now is finding a new source of energy. The Arabs may be on top now but some day when their wells run dry they may see the return of the camel and aid from Washington to buy hay.

I contend that man is going to find a new source of energy, but I contend also he's going to get caught with the same flaw present sources have. Somebody will figure out how to meter it.

Some experts are talking about harnessing the energy of the tides, and as sure as it's accomplished some smart alec will figure out a way to run it through a meter.

Take electricity. Nobody knows for sure exactly what it is, you can't see it except when it shorts out. It travels down a wire which obviously is impossible since the wire isn't hollow, yet they've managed to run it through a meter.

You name it, water, electricity, gas, somebody has figured out how to run it through a meter.

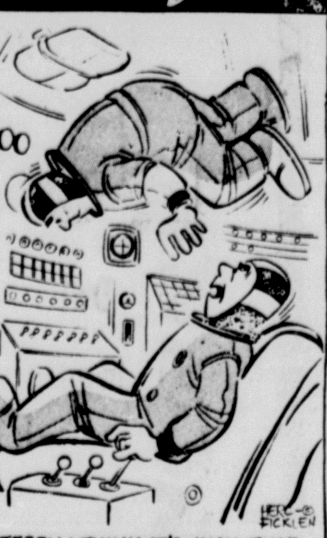

People are talking also about harnessing the energy from the sun, heating their homes from its rays, and as sure as you're sitting there somebody is going to figure out how to run the rays through a meter that automatically bills you before the rays hit your roof. Fail to pay your bill and they'll turn off the sun over your house.

The more I think about this, selling energy that doesn't cost anything to produce, the more I'd like to find out who's working on it and if they have any stock to sell. I'd like to get in on the ground floor.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

A new conservation farming technique saved an estimated 1.8 million gallons of tractor fuel in Texas this year, reports an official of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Edward E. Thomas, state conservationist for SCS in Temple, said minimum tillage farming systems eliminated an average of five tractor trips per acre during 1973 on about 354,000 acres of cropland.

"A tractor burns about a gallon of fuel per acre for the average farming operation," Thomas said. "Eliminating five tractor trips per acre reduces fuel consumption by five gallons of gasoline or diesel per acre."

To haul 1.8 million gallons of fuel in railroad tank cars would require a train nearly two miles long.

Thomas predicted even greater fuel savings in the future as more farmers turn to the new system.

"The practice is still a long way from being perfected," Thomas admitted. "But we've come a long way in the last 3 years. If similar gains can be made in the next few years, conservation farmers will be able to make a major contribution in helping ease the energy crunch.

With minimum tillage, crops are planted directly into the stalks and leaves left over from the previous crop without prior land preparation. Herbicides are used to control weeds, cutting out several tractor trips over a field. Some farmers report minimum tillage saves as many as 10 to 12 tractor trips per crop. A statewide average is about half that amount.

The surface cover of dead leaves and stems greatly reduces wind erosion, dust storms, and air pollution. The practice is equally effective in preventing water erosion and sedimentation from cropland.

Thomas said one of the big problems with minimum tillage is that surface-applied herbicides used to control weeds don't always work properly on all soils in Texas. He said better, more dependable herbicides adapted to mulch farming are needed.

Thomas credit the state's conservation farmers with helping develop minimum tillage farming systems.

"This practice has evolved by trial and error during the last few years," Thomas said. "SCS agronomists, researchers, chemical companies, conservation district leaders, and innovative farmers have all had a part in developing the measure. We only hope continued progress can be made in this field."

With 20 million acres of cropland in Texas, long-term fuel saving possibilities by improved methods of minimum tillage are huge. Thomas pointed out.

BIG THIRST

Americans have a big thirst for soft drinks, whether they call them "soda" in New York, "tonic" in Boston, or "pop" anywhere else. Last year the average American drank more than a glass a day, or 406 eight-ounce glasses -- a full gallon more than the year before.

BROOM WEEDS TO Bermuda - George Fishler of Cameron using a rotary attachment is turning a wet clay hillside covered with broom weeds into an improved Bermuda grass pasture, using Zimmerly select sto-lens. He is doing five jobs in one, shredding, chiseling, disc, harrowing, leveling and packing. He is planning to use 400 lbs of 28-14-0 to the acre to produce hay and sprigs.

Grain Thieves Manipulate Weight To Cheat Dealers, White Warns

AUSTIN--A new method of stealing grain without the use of a "pit man" or electronic device has been devised by grain swindlers, who continue to cheat grain dealers out of thousands of dollars.

Recently disclosed by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, the method involves manipulating weights during double weighing. It is difficult to detect unless scale operators know what to look for, White said.

"The drivers always pick out scales that are not long enough to weigh the whole tractor and trailer together," White said. "When they pull the tractor onto the scales to be weighed, they activate a device that raises the front axle of the rear tandem wheels."

More weight is placed on the front of the trailers, increasing the weight of the tractor. When the truck pulls up to weigh the trailer, the wheels are lowered.

The process is reversed when the trucks load grain. The wheels are raised while the trailer is on the scales. More weight is put on the tractor, making the load weigh less than it is.

Such deception can increase weight by 5,000 to 10,000 pounds each time grain is bought and sold.

White pointed out that double weighing is illegal, but is often done at scales not long enough to handle large trucks. The fraudulent practice works only in cases of double weighing.

Though only one instance of such deception has been uncovered, Texas Department of Agriculture Weights and Measures officials fear more trucks are equipped in this manner. They have warned grain dealers to watch for trucks with the following characteristics:

-Rear tires far enough off the ground that they can be turned by hand. All four wheels should be firmly on the ground.

-Tires about 18 inches apart. Tires of the rear tandem should be six to eight inches apart.

-An air bag at the rear of the trailer and extra air hoses coming off the cab.

White also mentioned other precautionary measures that every scale operator should take. These include making sure locks are on scale manholes, checking under scales frequently for weights placed on multiplying beams, looking under the tarp and checking for false bottoms.

Anyone who suspects he is being cheated should contact the Texas Department of Agriculture, White said.

Pork Most Versatile

Pork is served in shapes, colors and styles that tantalize young and old. It can be picked up in the fingers, carried to a ball game, barbecued in the back yard or served at the most sumptuous banquet table.

Pork is one of the few meats that has been adapted for inclusion in all three meals of the day. It can be enjoyed for breakfast, lunch and dinner -- and as snacks, too. And it provides nutrients needed by Americans of all ages and walks of life.

Fertilizer Shortage Expected In Spring

Austin--Anticipating a four million ton shortage of fertilizer next spring, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White warned Texas farmers they must try for "maximum benefits from a minimum amount of fertilizers in 1974."

Stressing more efficient use of fertilizers, White said it may be necessary to re-evaluate some farming procedures.

An important early step in determining fertilizer needs is a soil test, he said. Some of the larger fertilizer companies will provide this service for their customers. Farmers may also take their own soil samples and send them to Texas A&M University for analysis. Boxes and forms for sending soil samples are available through the county agent.

Farmers should also take a close look at the fertilizers they have been using to make sure they are using a fertilizer best suited for their needs, White said. With the current shortage of fuel, White suggested that farmers may be able to save by using a fertilizer which takes only one application.

The Fertilizer Institute has advised that fertilizer needs be determined early and suggests farmers get their orders in as soon as possible to avoid transportation problems. Early orders will help the companies plan their shipments.

Good aeration of the soil will also help to get the maximum benefits from fertilizers, White said.

"Farmers must utilize every known method for getting full benefits from the fertilizer to keep up production levels," he said. "Fertilizer is not only going to be in short supply, but it is also going to be more expensive."

Several factors have contributed to the fertilizer shortage, White said. An additional 62 million acres of cropland diverted from production in 1972 have been released and are available for production next year.

Also, fertilizer exports have increased this year due to higher foreign prices. Export market prices were about $70 per ton while price ceilings held domestic prices to about $45 per ton. With the removal of price ceilings last month, more fertilizer should be available in the United States but at higher prices, White said.

If estimates of a four million ton shortage are accurate, "we could lose 200 million tons of grain potential for next season's crop," White said. "More efficient use of the product is absolutely essential."

Market Report

Cattle and calves receipts totaled 450 at Thursday's livestock auction. Slaughter cows mostly 1.00 higher. Slaughter bulls steady, all feeder cattle fully steady.

Slaughter cows utility brought 32.25 to 38. Cutter 32 to 38.75. Canner 26 to 32. Slaughter bulls, yield grade 1-2 brought 42.50 to 45.25.

Feeder steers choice 54 to 58. Standard 46 to 52. Feeder heifers choice 48 to 53. Stock cows and good and choice heifers 34 to 39.

Hog receipts totaled 292 with US 1-2 barrows and gilts at 40.40 to 41. US 1-2 sows brought 36.25 to 38.40.

Fuel and Food

The fuel shortage has become crucial to food production in the United States. Petroleum products are needed for trucking livestock and crops from farm to market to processor to food store and are essential to the operation of today's heavily mechanized farms. Not only can a fuel shortage hamper production and marketing of food products, increased prices for fuel are reflected in the cost of food in the retail stores.

On British trains, the cow-catcher is called the plough.

Fat Stock Show Is Growing

Combining scattered increases from livestock breeds which showed last year and a good representation from exhibitors of first-time breeds, plus an anticipated good entry among rabbits, pigeons and poultry, predictions are for another outstanding 10-day run for the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show.

The 78th edition of the Stock Show is scheduled Jan. 25 through Feb. 3. Entry deadlines for rabbits, pigeons and poultry are Jan. 15. Other livestock entries have closed and are being processed and counted.

"We are encouraged, with an anticipated good showing in the small stock division, that entries this year could exceed the record-breaking 13,000 head catalogued during our 1973 show," said W. R. Watt Jr., Stock Show general manager.

The Brown Swiss breed, new this year in the dairy division, will be well represented, Watt commented. "Adding these cattle to other dairy breed increases, in both junior and open classes, this division is showing quality and strength."

Gains in junior beef breeding heifers entries have expanded judging in this division to two days each. A strong showing also is indicated in junior steers, barrows, breeding sheep and lambs. "Having so many young people exhibiting their animals is an encouragement to what the future holds," Watt said. "We are glad to provide a competitive showcase for these farmers and ranchers of tomorrow."

US, China Detente Was Fashioned Last Year

By Jonathan Sharp

PEKING

Reuter -- Three sleek Boeing 707's parked at Peking airport in the colors of China's National Airline are eloquent reminders that 1973 was the year which saw the hastily-fashioned detente between China and the United States moulded into a relationship of solid and permanent content.

Inevitably, 1973 in China suffered from a sense of anti-climax after the visits to Peking by President Nixon and Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka the previous year.

None of the visits by foreign notables this year -- including President Georges Pompidou of France, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and two visits by Henry Kissinger -- could quite match the high drama of the Nixon and Tanaka missions.

Instead of diplomatic blockbusters, 1973 in China offered by way of contrast the curious sight of American actress Shirley MacLaine strolling hand-in-hand through a Peking public park with Madame Chou En-Lai.

There was also the emergence of a Chinese "Star", 38-year-old Wang Hung-Wen who soared to number three in the Chinese political hierarchy as a result of the Chinese communist party's 10th national congress in August.

The year saw the surprise reappearance of one of the old guard of the Chinese leadership: former party secretary-general Teng Hsiao-Ping who disappeared amidst a welter of abuse in the cultural revolution but has now been firmly reinstated into Chinese public life.

Teng reappeared on the night of April 12 when he walked into the banquetting chamber of Peking's great Hall of the People for a state banquet -- living evidence that deep political disgrace in China does not necessarily mean physical liquidation and need not be permanent.

But it was the ongoing process of Sino-American detente, which began with Kissinger's first and highly secret mission to Peking in 1971, that was the best running story of 1973.

In late February Kissinger arrived for his first visit of the year and his fifth in all. Like his previous visits it was kept very much under wraps. The only glimpses resident newsmen had of Kissinger were at the airport when he arrived and when he left.

Several days after the visit was over it was announced that China and the United States had agreed to put their relationship on a more solid footing by establishing non-diplomatic liaison offices in each other's capitals.

The title "liaison office" was a neat verbal formula to overcome China's objections to having full diplomatic relations with a country recognising the rival Chinese government on the island of Taiwan.

In fact it soon became clear that the offices would operate very much as full-blown embassies.

The U. S. office was opened on a warm mid-May evening with the arrival in Peking of veteran diplomat David K. E. Bruce, with a team of talented and energetic officials.

The sword and the stone: it was believed that agates could turn the sword of an enemy upon himself!

Special Care Tips For Fake Fur

Some fake furs need pampering almost as much as the real thing.

Yet others require only simple maintenance to keep their good looks.

Check the care label carefully when considering a fake fur garment. It pays to study the label first.

Instructions may state "washable" or "machine washable" or "dry clean only."

Also look for shrinkage information on the label. Some fabric furs aren't pre-shrunk prior to garment construction -- so shrinkage could present a problem.

Even "washable" garments should be treated with care -- according to instructions. For example, use warm -- not hot -- water and a mild soap or detergent.

Agitation speed also makes a difference.

Rapid actions of the water results in fur clumping and matting. So for best results, set washing machine for a slow or delicate speed and a shorter cycle.

Line dry the garment or lay it on a terry towel to dry. These methods help prevent matting of the fur. Although it may look shaggy and matted after drying, a gentle brushing or combing usually fluffs it up again.

Leisure - High-Impact 'Product'

COLLEGE STATION Retirement by age 38 may be commonplace by the year 2000, according to some forecasters.

"Leisure will become America's greatest natural resource, if this and other predictions develop," Nelson Barksdale, recreation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted.

Other predictions include "normal, healthy life to age 90 or 95 with the advancement of medicine and the four-day work week," he said.

"Leisure, rather than work, has already become the dominant human factor which integrates life's plained.

He admitted that there is some question as to whether "we will accept our leisure as seriously as we do our work."

"Today most Americans work in order to enjoy more leisure -- which has become an end in itself and a status symbol of the first order."

"The fulfilling quality of our work has declined -- partially due to automation and technology," he added. "With increasing numbers of the American population living in urban areas, many people have routine jobs and live in a relatively ugly, sterile and monotonous environment which generally lacks the physical and social diversity that is necessary for the developmental needs," Barksdale explained.

Turning to leisure itself, the specialist pronounced too much leisure a problem creator -- facing many people with a great emptiness. They are people who find themselves released from the necessity of long hours of work -- but who have not been educated for the proper use of leisure time, he said.

"We're required to shift to new ways of studying and understanding with leisure being the overall major product of this age of technology," he said.

AN EXCITING, NEW ARMY OF SPORTSWEAR WITH THE YOUNG CONTEMPORARY IN MIND

DOWNTOWN CAMERON

Question:
Will you have enough natural gas for your home this winter?

Answer:
Yes!

Let's lay this question to rest once and for all. Lone Star Gas Company has enough natural gas reserves under contract to adequately supply our residential, commercial and other higher priority customers for many winters.

To be sure we have enough for these consumers, we will make some extensive curtailments of service to our large volume customers during extreme cold weather this winter. In fact, our contracts with large volume customers anticipate the need to curtail up to 100% of their needs during these cold periods. This allows us to assure service to residential, commercial and other higher priority customers.

We're taking major steps to make sure you have gas for the future. New gas we're buying costs more than four times the price we paid just a few years ago. This is an astonishing amount of money! But it's the price all of us must pay for a continuing supply of natural gas energy.

This winter, and in the future, natural gas from Lone Star will continue to be your best method of home heating, water heating and cooking...just as it has been for more than 40 years. But we all must remember to help conserve this precious energy fuel.

Legislature Meets For Convention

Members of the Texas Legislature met in Austin Tuesday, January 8, to begin an historic undertaking, the first full-scale revision of the Texas Constitution in nearly 100 years.

The Constitutional Convention of 1974, composed of the Senate and the House of Representatives, has been charged by the people of Texas with studying the present Constitution, written in 1875, and recommending changes to the people.

The recommendations of the Convention must be approved or rejected by the voters of Texas at an election to be set by the Convention.

The Constitutional Convention was authorized by a constitutional amendment approved by the 63rd Legislature and by a 560,000 vote majority at a general election in 1972.

Preparations for the Convention included the appointment of the 37-member Constitutional Revision Commission which met from March through November of 1973 and recommended a new Constitution for Texas to the Legislature.

Mrs. Muse had been elected to appear in the 1968 edition of "Community Leaders of America."

Investment Credit Cuts Taxes

Investment tax credit can put tax dollars into farmers' and ranchers' pockets.

According to Don L. Parks, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, "Investment tax credit reduces federal tax bills to the extent of 7 percent of qualified investment for the year.

"Qualifying property must be depreciable, have a useful life of at least three years, and be placed in service by you during the tax year. It also must be tangible personal property or tangible real property which is an integral part of production," points out the Texas A&M University System specialist.

He lists farm trucks, machinery, equipment and breeding livestock (except horses) as examples of qualifying tangible personal property while livestock fences, grain bins and silos are examples of qualifying tangible real property. Barns, poultry houses and farm shops do not qualify since a qualifying structure must be essentially an item of machinery or equipment.

"The amount of investment credit allowed depends on the asset's useful life. A useful life of seven years or more qualifies 100 percent of the investment, five to seven years' useful life qualifies two-thirds and three to five years' useful life qualifies one-third of the investment. There is no credit under three years of useful life. Seven percent of the qualifying investment is the tax credit," explains the economist.

If an asset is disposed of before the end of its estimated useful life, you must recompute the investment credit to determine the credit refund.

File In January

For Early Return

Want a faster refund this year? The Internal Revenue Service says that taxpayers who file their tax returns in January should get their refunds in four to five weeks. After January it may take six to eight weeks.

Richard J. Stakem, Jr., district director of Internal Revenue for Southern Texas, said that January filers gain about a two-week advantage over those who file later because the 10 IRS service centers can process returns and approve refunds faster early in the filing season before workloads increase.

"Taxpayers who file early avoid making thoughtless errors that often occur in a last minute rush to meet the April 15 deadline," he said.

To avoid the rush and get an early refund, Stakem urged taxpayers to file their returns as soon as possible.

14 energy-conserving ideas from a home economist!

Mrs. Jo Ann Thompson, Home Service Director of Texas Power & Light Company

HEATING

1. Have a qualified serviceman check your electric heating system annually.
2. If you have a forced-air heating system, replace or clean filters frequently.
3. Set thermostat at 68 degrees during the day, slightly lower at night. If you will be away for a day, a weekend or longer, set thermostat at 55-60 degrees.
4. Keep furniture and draperies clear of air outlets and returns.
5. Open outside doors as little as possible. Keep doors and windows properly weatherstripped.
6. If you have a fireplace, keep damper closed when not in use.

KITCHEN & LAUNDRY

1. Defrost refrigerator regularly and replace worn door gaskets.
2. Don't overload refrigerator.
3. When cooking on range, use flat-bottomed utensils which fit surface units. Cover utensils when possible.
4. Allow frozen meats to thaw before cooking. Cook meats and vegetables together, or in separate utensils at the same time in oven.
5. Operate dishwasher, clothes washer and dryer only when fully loaded.
6. Conserve hot water by washing clothes in cold water with cold-water detergents.

OTHER

1. Turn off any inside or outside lighting not actually needed.
2. Turn off television, radio, iron, etc. when you leave them.

Nationwide, there is concern about the energy crisis.

In many sections of the country, people are experiencing, firsthand, the effects of shortages of energy-producing fuels: gasoline, oil and natural gas.

Texas Power & Light Company produces electric energy with generating plants which use natural gas or coal as fuel, with some oil-burning capability.

TP&L has the generating plants, the transmission and distribution lines and all the other facilities necessary to produce and supply all the electric energy its customers need. And, just as we have done for more than 60 years, we're building the facilities necessary to meet anticipated future needs.

But, we must have the fuels to produce the electric energy.

As TP&L customers use more electric energy, TP&L generating plants must use more fuel to produce the energy. Thus, wasteful use of electric energy automatically means wasteful use of one or more of the basic sources of energy.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve fuel. Conserve fuel and you help assure that there will be enough to produce electricity for essential needs.

TEXAS POWER & LIGHT'S HELPING, TOO

When you pass a TP&L office, warehouse, generating plant or other facility, you'll see that we've turned off all non-essential lighting.

...From Buckholts

By Mrs. Edwin Gandy

We were sorry to hear about the death of Mr. Joe Hrachovy. He died Sunday in a Cameron hospital. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in Cameron with burial in the Seton Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Travis Hill are the proud parents of a baby girl, Patricia, born Monday, January 7 in Kings Daughters Hospital in Temple.

Joe Brady is at home for the week. He is employed in Irving.

We are glad to report that Leslie Sakewitz and Anton Gaas both in Kings Daughters Hospital of Temple are improving after surgery.

Mrs. Earnest Lorenz is also a patient in Kings Daughters Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Richter visited with relatives and friends here Sunday afternoon.

Visiting in the Ladis Marek home were their nephews wife, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Marek.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Whittington visited her mother Mrs. Lee Garrett of Bartlett Sunday afternoon.

Miss Becky Beckhusen left Tuesday for Lubbock where she will attend college.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gandy were in Gatesville on Saturday.

U. S. Air Force Technical Sergeant James C. Wright, son of Mrs. Kate Wright of Cameron, has arrived for duty at Wiesbaden AB, Germany.

HAVE A HEALTHY VACATION

What's the worst way to waste a vacation? By letting your health take a holiday too. A little care can keep you from having to seek a lot of cures.

Don't forget your first-aid kit, and any special medication you may need. If you wear glasses, bring along an extra pair.

You can give your health a head start with a shot in the arm, if you arrange for immunizations against any diseases that may be endangering your vacation destination.

If you're heading for sun country, be sure to bring sunglasses, suntan lotion and sunshades and don't stay out in the sunshine for too long the first few days.

Don't drive for more than 300 miles a day. Fatigue can harm you physically, impair your ability to drive and possibly lead to an accident.

Although approximately 80 percent of American children are susceptible to motion sickness, it can perhaps be prevented by avoiding heavy meals before traveling. If it should occur the best fare is fresh air. It also aids the afflicted to concentrate on some fixed object and sit as still as possible. Sometimes, sucking on a lemon leads to relief, too.

While a large part of the fun of visiting foreign countries is in sampling the strange new native foods, it's best to be careful. The water in Mexico, the steak tartare in Turkey, or the fresh fruit in Italy may not always agree with American stomachs.

Whatever you do, don't overdo it. After a whole day of driving, shopping or sightseeing, spend another just relaxing.

Keep your health by taking care of yourself, and your dreams of a happy vacation have a better chance of coming true!

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Is America a nation of "nutritional illiterates?" That's what a member of Congress told a committee of the American Medical Association recently. But, according to a Texas State Health Department nutritionist,

Protein Needs Are Studied

The world-wide need for more protein is causing Texas agricultural scientists to emphasize full use of all forage crop resources.

Dr. Jarvis E. Miller, director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the state's agricultural research agency, said that some of the nation's crop forage industry leaders and consultants are working with Experiment Station researchers to help plan future forage production and utilization research projects.

More than 60 leading Texas agricultural scientists concerned with improving forage quality and yields are working with key industry representatives to study all aspects of animal production and forage needs and future trends, and to plan research designed to meet these needs, Miller said.

Program areas that they are concerned with include integrated cattle production, trends and production in cow calf programs, fertilizer availability and costs, grain production and availability and costs, grain production and availability for cattle production, feedlot potentials, meat marketing and meat quality factors, all of which have an important impact on future forage needs and research efforts.

Also being studied by the agricultural scientists and industry leaders are other forage production factors, such as research in soil fertility, grass breeding, legumes, establishment and production management, pasture production and grazing management and harvested forages.

Out-of-state consultants working with the TAES researchers to help pinpoint needs include foremost authorities from their respective fields. Among the consultants are a research agronomist with experience in forage production and management from Auburn University; an animal nutritionist from Cornell University with experience in forage quality and utilization; a grass breeder from the University of Minnesota with experience in developing new materials; and a forage crop specialist with the Cooperative State Research Service in Washington, D. C.

Purpose of the intensified planning is to provide more high quality protein -- both plant and animal -- for the nation's consumers, Director Miller said.

people are beginning to pay more attention to nutrition and its effects on their health. People are beginning to question some of the things that they hear about food and their diet.

There is no one ideal diet that people have to follow in order to stay healthy, according to the State Health Department. And you don't have to change your entire way of life, or give up all your favorite foods, in order to have a better diet.

Nutritionists say that every meal pattern has something good in it. As long as a person eats a well-balanced diet, with something every day from each of the four major food groups unless there is a weight problem, it's all right to eat some things just because you enjoy them.

The main components of a well-balanced diet are familiar to everyone. They include daily portions of meat, fish, or poultry; milk and dairy products; fresh fruits and vegetables; and bread or cereals. A regular diet that includes adequate amounts every day from each of these four food groups will provide most people with all of the essential nutrients they need.

The State Health Department does not believe that the so-called health foods or organically grown foods are particularly valuable. The foods that you buy in your supermarket are just as good, and in many cases they cost a lot less than food. As for organically-grown foods, you can't tell by looks, taste, or chemical analysis any difference between foods grown in organic fertilizer or commercial fertilizer. Both types of fertilizers contain just about the same chemicals.

Everyone who buys food can afford good nutrition, says the State Health Department. In fact, good foods and well-planned meals are more economical than the "junk foods" that contain less nutrition. A well-balanced diet can be based on most of the traditional foods in different ethnic and cultural patterns, as well. Even the ordinary American hamburger has its place in the diet; everything in it is good food.

pruning and the necessity of annual weed clearing," an agronomist says.

Farmer and exporter Gunter Smith, who owns a 740-acre plantation near the sleepy village of Itapitanga, 63 miles north of here, proudly admits: "The new methods have tripled my production but there are still many who hesitate to make the investments because they are scared the return will not justify them."

Smith runs a model farm with a crash program of adding 80,000 new trees to the existing 100,000. He employs 60 men to clear almost vertical hillsides of jungle growth for cocoa seedling planting.

China Reporting Bumper Harvest

By Jonathan Sharp

PEKING
Reuter -- The magic words "bumper harvest" have been appearing with increasing frequency in the pages of Chinese newspapers, confirming reports that China's agriculture has at least improved on its mediocre performance last year.

After a decade of steadily rising crop yields there was a 10 million ton drop in the all-important grain crop last year.

This was officially blamed on bad weather -- drought in some areas, waterlogging in others -- rather than on man-made problems.

But there has apparently been a successful comeback this year, which has also seen the man in charge of Tachai, China's Model Agricultural Unit, promoted to the all-powerful communist party politbureau.

A Chinese official disclosed at a food and agriculture organization meeting in Rome that the grain yield this year would be above the record 250 million metric tons achieved in 1971.

No final figure for this year is available yet.

However, in the past few weeks China's leading newspaper, The Peoples Daily, has published a number of reports from different areas of the country reporting "bumper harvests"

But the reports are selective and sketchy and it is too soon to build up a overall picture.

Observers say that the fact that China has gone ahead this year with major purchases of wheat, mainly from Canada, Australia and the latest arrival in the China trade, the United States, does not necessarily point to a serious shortage here.

China's policy in the past has been to buy wheat in order to be able to export rice, which is relatively more profitable. The recent wheat contracts, which are for delivery over the next few years may mean this policy is being extended.

China said recently that over the years its food output has risen faster than its population. But in a country where there are roughly 15 million more mouths to feed every year, grain output is bound to remain a critical factor in the economy and a setback like last year tends to assume crisis-like proportions.

The reserves are regarded by the Chinese as a vital strategic backstop in view of China's oft-stated fears of an attack from the Soviet Union.

Comet Causes Stir In Brazil

By Uli Schmetzer

RIO DE JANEIRO

Reuter -- Brazil's National Indian Foundation has sent out envoys to explain the phenomenon of the Comet Kohoutek to superstitious tribesmen who have their own fantastic ideas about the "celestial snowball."

Nowhere in the country has the comet caused more stir than in the town of Campo Redondo, 98 miles from northeastern Natal. A team of scientists waited patiently there to photograph the comet at what is believed to be the best site in Brazil to obtain such pictures.

But many of the town's 10,000 inhabitants have refused to leave their houses, convinced that the end of the world is near. Others have refused to eat meat, in honor of the impending arrival of a new Messiah.

"The Child of God will come in a ball of fire. Pray, you heathens," advises one self-styled prophet. A more radical colleague warns the townspeople: "The ball of fire will ravage the whole northeast. The end has come. Make penitence."

Opposition town fathers have accused Mayor Jose Alberany de Souza of paying out a fortune to the United States for the privilege of having the comet pass over their town.

"He has paid the United States to make the comet pass over the city... but the comet has not come despite all the money he invested," they told newsmen.

In this poor area of Brazil, which has a high illiteracy rate, those in the town who claim to have "inside knowledge" say the Americans are behind the whole affair.

"Proof of this is that they have the comet on television and they have created a ball of fire which they are chasing with one of their own rockets," the know-it-alls say.

Rent-A-Cops Outnumber Police

By Neil Harrison

TORONTO

Reuter -- Private security personnel -- or Rent-a-Cops as they are known here -- now outnumber public police by two to one in Ontario, Canada's most populous province.

The private security industry is booming and appears to be heading for a major controversy next year over the training and powers granted to private guards.

Rent-A-Cops have very limited powers in the province but not as many people -- including the security personnel themselves -- seem to realize it.

The other big problem is that the demand for guards is so great that training in all but a few of the best-run agencies is cursory and the turnover of personnel is very high.

The range of standards within the industry, which now employs about 30,000 people, is great.

At one point of the scale, there are some agencies which pay high wages, employ well-trained ex-police men and wear uniforms which clearly distinguish them from regular police -- another controversial point.

At the other are the agencies who will put almost anyone into uniform -- and undertake major contracts which they cannot possibly fulfill with properly trained personnel.

Part of the problem is that building guard work involves anti-social night shifts and security agencies have real trouble finding stable, responsible people to work round-the-clock.

The result is that often, the impressive looking guard is only a step from alcoholism, or may be in the middle of his second full shift and be almost asleep on his feet.

But there seems little doubt that in Canada as in the United States, private policing is here to stay.

Toronto's police chief, Harold Adamson, while calling for stronger legislation controlling private policing, said recently that security guards were clearly essential.

If they don't exist, he said, his own force would have to grow from under 5,000 to 20,000 to cope with the demands that would be placed on it.

But as security personnel enter more and more fields including plain-clothes detective work to check on employee honesty in large corporations.

ENERGY TALKS

"Would higher gasoline and automobile taxes help alleviate the shortages?"

"They probably would help, but they would only be half a solution. You can discourage the use of gasoline by higher taxes, but you cannot create more supply with taxes. The best way to balance supply with demand is to let prices seek their natural level."

Tollfree Telephone Line Invites Constitution Queries

A statewide tollfree telephone line which enables Texans all over the state to ask questions and offer suggestions on constitutional revision will continue to operate during the 1974 Constitutional Convention.

The telephone number is 1-800-292-9600.

The Texas Constitutional Information Center was originally established by the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission as part of its charge to inform the public of its activities.

The telephone line has averaged a high volume of calls from citizens with questions about the constitutional revision process or the Commission's proposed new Constitution for Texas.

During the first month of its existence, between November 15 and December 15, the center received an average of 48 calls on each working day. The number of calls ranged from a low of 15 on the first day of operation to a high of 143.

The information center will continue to operate 24 hours a day. It will be manned by staff during the day-time and calls at night will be recorded for answers later.

Information Center staff is equipped to answer many of the questions asked. Other questions will be referred to appropriate Convention research staff for written answers.

The Constitutional Revision Commission found the Information Center valuable in accurately answering citizen questions and receiving suggestions from those wishing to help with the Constitution.

Callers to date have included a broad cross-section of Texans -- university professors interested in teaching material, lawyers trying to clear up technical questions, students writing papers on constitutional revision and a great number of citizens concerned about how a new Constitution would affect their lives.

The Convention Information Center will be located in the Convention Public Information Office in the Capitol.

The number will continue to be 1-800-292-9600.

USDA Raises Payments For Lunches

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has retroactively increased its payment rates to state educational agencies to help schools pay for school lunches and school breakfasts they have served during the past six months.

The increased rates cover meals served under the national school lunch and school breakfast programs between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1973. They were announced by USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) as another step in implementing the new child nutrition law passed last month.

The national average payment to help defray food costs of each lunch served to participating school children was increased from 8 to 10 cents. Within that average, states were authorized to vary the rate of reimbursement to individual schools up to a maximum 16 cents a lunch. Previously the ceiling was 14 cents.

For the first time, states will receive a guaranteed additional payment to assist in the service of lunches to needy children of 35 cents for each reduced-price lunch and 45 cents for each free lunch. Any state where payments averaged higher than this rate last year will be paid at that higher level through Dec. 31, 1973.

In cases of severe need, the federal per lunch reimbursement to individual schools can range as high as 70 cents for each lunch served free, 10 cents above the previous maximum. Payment rates for each reduced-price lunch in these circumstances may vary up to a high of 60 cents, the same level previously allowed.

The new regulations also give the states the responsibility for determining relative need among schools and for setting variable rates of cash reimbursement within federally-allowed maximums.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN. It's an economic fact of life that the cost of almost all goods and services have risen at a rather steady rate in recent months, but most consumers feel the pressure most in their grocery budgets.

Economists are telling us that there's no immediate hope of turning the price trends downward, so it's more important than ever that individuals follow the examples of business and government, and concentrate on getting full value for money spent.

Most shoppers are aware that unit pricing is a good indicator of value, and have learned to compare the costs of various brands, shop for "specials," and experiment with new labels and products.

Not so well known is the fact that the U.S. Department of Agriculture requires that practically all food products be coded as to freshness: ingredients included; nutritional values, and weights by general measures as well as measuring units for cooking (cups, pints, etc.).

Some food manufacturers and processors have made it easy for the buyer to tell how long an item can be expected to retain its fresh flavor. For instance, the label of one brand of mayonnaise clearly states that the customer should not buy a jar of a specific batch after such-and-such a date.

Most cereal and cheese manufacturers, as well as producers of baked goods put the sales expiration dates on packages so that they are easy to find and read.

Coding on canned goods, on the other hand, may be a bit obscure for the average consumer, but your store manager should have a key list for coding to guide you.

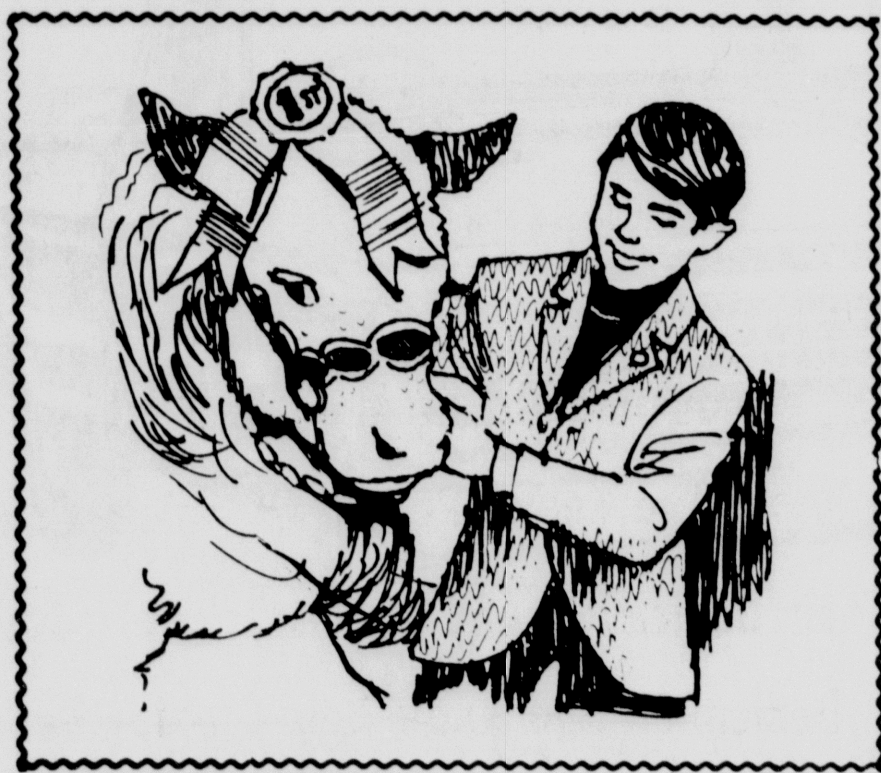

Date coding on meat may vary from store to store. Some larger chains stamp the day of the month a cut was packaged right below the weight and price. Others use codes which would have to be deciphered by the butcher or store manager.

Mike is dated, but usually the date is embossed -- without color contrast -- at the top of the carton on the spout side.

Bakers of bread usually employ colored tag twists to denote the difference between days loaves were baked. Package markings also serve as clues in the cases of some bakers with national distribution.

Hornets Sting Yoemen 58-56

A fourth quarter rally by the Gatesville Hornets handed the Cameron Yoemen their first district loss by a close 58-56 score, Tuesday night in Gatesville.

The loss moves the Yoemen district record to 1-1, and they are now tied with Gatesville for the zone lead.

The entire first half was a close one as Cameron took a slim 11-10 lead at the end of the first period of play, and at halftime the score was tied at 23-23.

The Yoemen returned to the court and moved to a 43-33 third quarter lead, but lost it as the Hornets rallied in the fourth.

Gatesville outscored Cameron 25-13 during this period of play. 10 of the Hornets points came by the shooting of Johnny Gann who led the Hornets in scoring with 19.

Jafus White tossed in 16 points to lead the Yoemen in scoring, Harry Brooks scored 13, John Barron 8, Ronnie Bennett 7, Gary Hornung 4, and Kenneth Scott, Troy Daniels, Micheal White, and Randy Sapp scored 2 each.

The loss moves the Yoemen season record to 15-6, and Gatesville now owns a 8-12.

Cameron's next game will be this Friday against a strong Copperas Cove team. The varsity is scheduled to play at 6:30 p.m. and the JV will kick things off at 5 p.m.

In junior varsity action against Gatesville, Cameron was downed by a 59-57 score.

TEX: "GREAT MAN"

A group of Texans were sitting around talking as giant airships came and went.

It was May, 1960, at Los Angeles International and young Carl Warwick, a classy Dodger rookie was holding court. Carl, the former All-America TCU outfielder, who was later to set a World Series Pinch-Hit record with the 1964 St. Louis Cardinal World Champions, was telling those "Gee Whiz" tales about Hollywood.

"I met the most impressive man the other night I believe I've ever had the pleasure of meeting," he said. The Texans crowded a little closer. Did he mean Gregory Peck, Bing Crosby, or perhaps Bob Hope.

"No," he said, "I've met them - and, they are all Dodger fans. No, I am talking about Tex Ritter. What an impressive man!"

"And, he loves Texas, too. In fact, the only thing he loves more than the state of Texas is the University of Texas. He is a REAL Longhorn football fan!"

That conversation, almost 14 years old, came to mind last week when Ritter, the famed Cowboy movie star and country music legend was buried at Port Heches, just outside Beaumont.

The eulogy was read by Dr. John Gray, Lamar University President, a UT classmate of Tex Ritter in the Twenties. Ken Ritter, Mayor Beaumont is a nephew.

STORMIN' NORMAN:

The Houston Oilers have done many questionable things. Sending Norman Smith to the Miami Dolphins in the AFL expansion draft eight years ago, however, is rivalled only by the gift of George Blanda to Oakland. Smith, the old TCU star tackle, out of McAllen, was the guy around whom Don Shula built his World Championship. Smith, of course, leads Miami into Super Bowl VIII Sunday at Rice Stadium.

Yoe To Play Cove

The Cameron Yoemen have met two of their five district opponents. They defeated Lampasas, 70-34, and lost to the Gatesville Hornets, 58-56.

The Yoemen are 1-1, but don't believe too many people expected them to be (many expected 2-0). However, the Yoemen are still tied with Gatesville for the zone lead, and district play has just begun.

The next Yoe opponent will be the Copperas Cove Bulldogs, Friday night in Cameron. Competition will be great between the two teams and neither team is expected to run away with an easy victory.

Cove has a strong team, and Max Graham feels that they are one of the best teams in District 12-AAA. Cove will be at their strongest Friday night as they try to hunt down the predicted winners of the zone.

This head height with an added foot and a half of arm and hand provides the Bulldogs with a protective shield over opponents goals.

So far, the Bulldogs, and the Yoemen have met fine basketball teams, and many times came out with victories. Cove could list as their highlight of the season. A victory over 4 A Austin Reagan, and the Yoemen could rely on a victory over a strong Waco Connally team.

Or to go even further, one could compare the two teams victories over a similar opponent, the Lampasas Badgers.

Cameron defeated Lampasas by a 70-34 score, and Copperas Cove beat them by a 54-32 score. Both teams had a tremendous height advantage over the Badger squad.

You can take the results for what they are worth, but the real showing of strength will be seen Friday night. Both teams will be up for the game-Cameron trying to stay alive after the loss to Gatesville, and Cove trying to defeat the predicted zone winner.

YOU AND THAT DIET!

Another resolution most of us made was to watch those calories! Successful dieting is really learning a new way of eating that will assure continuation of good food habits. A good diet is one that provides the proper nutrients without those extra calories. A well-balanced reducing diet will provide those essentials. It is important for the dieter to choose foods from all food groups. You know about the Basic Four, but how about the Basic Seven? Instead of one group of fruits and vegetables, in addition to the meat, cereal and milk groups, the Basic Seven breaks the fruits and vegetables down into three separate groups. One group consists of the leafy green and yellow vegetables. These are good sources of Vitamin A. The second group includes citrus fruits and tomatoes, all good sources of Vitamin C. The third group includes potatoes and all other fruits and vegetables. Adults should have one or two servings of Group 1, one or more from Group 2, and one or more from Group 3 every day. This sounds like a lot of vegetables, but remember that, nutritionally speaking, four ounces of cooked fruits and vegetables is considered adequate. Try new taste treats, such as herbs and spices instead of heavy sauces, on vegetables. Learn the value of lemon juice to spark vegetable flavors. Use fresh fruits and vegetables as garnishes to add eye appeal to the diet. Eat the parsley which comes as a garnish—it's an excellent source of iron! Dried fruits have no added sugar; they just seem sweeter because the water has been removed. They make a fine "sweet tooth" treat at about ten calories per dried apricot half.
